The Center for Access & Transition's advising program, Center for Access and Transition, at University of Cincinnati has been selected as an Outstanding Institutional Advising Program Certificate of Merit recipient from the National Academic Advising Association as part of the 2008 Annual Awards Program for Academic Advising. This program is directed by Lori Wright and Rebecca McCollum.

This quality advising program was selected as one of seven programs to be honored with this award in nationwide competition this year. The Outstanding Advising Program Awards annually recognize programs that document innovative and/or exemplary practices resulting in improvement of academic advising service. This award will be presented during the annual NACADA Annual Conference in Chicago, Illinois in October.

Each year since 1983, NACADA has honored individuals and institutions making significant contributions to the improvement of academic advising. The goal of NACADA is to promote quality academic advising and professional development of its membership to enhance the educational development of students.

The over 10,000 NACADA members consist of faculty, professional advisors, administrators, counselors, and others in academic and student affairs concerned with the intellectual, personal, and vocational needs of students. In addition, NACADA is the representative and advocate of academic advising and those providing that service to higher education.
