Rediscover the Joy of Learning

A Message from Karen Zaugg, Chair of the OLLI Board of Trustees

In my first quarter of college, I took geology to satisfy a science requirement. Within a couple of weeks, I received a nearly failing grade on a geology lab quiz. Ouch! I immediately forged a close relationship with my geology text. Surprise! Not only did I bounce up from the failing level but I found that geology was pretty interesting, even fascinating.

That was an excellent life lesson that applies to OLLI as well. One certainly can enjoy OLLI by dabbling in classes, but it gets engaging, rewarding, and interesting in depth—moderating, attending special events, getting involved with committee work. Have fun and get emotionally rich with OLLI!

Take Sociology with UCBA Students this Fall

Dr. Lynn Ritchey, professor of sociology at UC Blue Ash, is looking for up to 10 volunteers to join her Introduction to Sociology course during UC's fall semester, Aug. 25–Dec. 1, on Thursdays, 2–3:30pm. You do not need to be a current OLLI member to take part in this volunteer experience.

This is an intergenerational course offering with older adults interacting in online and classroom settings with UCBA students. Students will create societies guided by sociological perspectives and concepts. You will explore a variety of topics—social structure and organization, culture, socialization, social statuses, roles, inequality, and deviance. What do people from different generations view as desirable for a successful society? Some online homework will be required. Instruction provided for volunteers unfamiliar with the online course software (discussion board).

For more information or to volunteer, contact Dr. Ritchey at 513-745-5658 or lhritchey@openmailbox.org.
