

INCLUSIVE EXCELLENCE WORKSHOP

Culturally Responsive Teaching Strategies

May 17, 1:30-3 PM

407 Teachers/Dyer Complex

PRESENTER: Kamree Maul

With access to education increasing for underrepresented communities, there is an increasing need for culturally competent educators to appropriately instruct those who are ethnically different. This session will review how cultural differences affect one's view of the world, as well as learning style. Participants will walk away with further understanding of how to create culturally responsive instruction by tailoring to the needs of culturally diverse students. This will further equip our faculty and staff with the resources needed to create an inclusive learning environment to ensure the retention of all our students.

Kamree Maul is a graduating senior completing his Bachelor of Business Administration in operations management and a minor in psychology. Hailing from Cincinnati, OH, Kamree has left his mark on the University, through his many leadership roles including serving as a mentor for Business Fellows and other freshmen in the African American Cultural and Resource Center, serving as a Program Director for the Programs and Activities Council, and being President of the Beta Eta Chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Incorporated. In May, he will be completing his two-year appointment as the Undergraduate Student Trustee on UC's Board of Trustees. Kamree believes that his experience as the Undergraduate Student Trustee has been the most rewarding, as it gave him the opportunity to advocate for and amplify the voices of those who are underrepresented and it allowed him to truly begin to understand the importance of self-less leadership. Upon graduation, Kamree will begin his career working as a Supply Chain Future Leader at Unilever in Englewood Cliff, New Jersey. With his close proximity to New York City, he also hopes to fulfill his dream of becoming an entrepreneur before the age of 25. He hopes to continue being an advocate for equity and inclusion, specifically in corporate America.
