INCLUSIVE EXCELLENCE WORKSHOP
THINKING STYLES
August 8 | 1:30 PM – 3:00 PM | TEACHERS/DYER COMPLEX ROOM 160
PRESENTER: BLEUZETTE MARSHALL, PhD

By reviewing characteristics of various thinking styles, participants in this interactive session learn to identify their preferred style and design strategies that enhance communication and strengthen work teams. Insight is gained around working together effectively based on thinking style preferences.

Bleuzette Marshall is the Vice President for Equity & Inclusion at the University of Cincinnati. In this role, she manages the offices of Equal Opportunity & Access, Title IX and Diversity & Inclusion; monitors the University’s Diversity Plan; co-chairs the President’s Diversity Council; provides strategic leadership for the recruitment, retention, and advancement of diverse talent (students, faculty, and staff); assists with supplier diversity efforts; serves as a resource to benchmark trends and promote best practices; and builds partnerships in the broader community. Bleuzette holds three degrees from UC including a BA in psychology (1992), an MEd (2001) in educational foundations, and a PhD in educational studies (2009).
