Groundbreaking female choreographers

April 29-30, 2016  Aronoff Center for the Arts: P&G Hall

A Solo in 9 Parts
Choreography: Jessica Lang
Music: Antonio Vivaldi
Jessica Lang’s Solo in 9 Parts is raw, modern and refreshingly stripped-down. Featuring nine performers on a bare stage and set to a Vivaldi violin concerto, Lang’s piece is beautifully and ingeniously crafted to showcase the true talent and athleticism of the dancers.

Cylindrical Shadows
Choreography: Anabelle Lopez Ochoa
Music: Johann Sebastian Bach, Henry Purcell, David van Bouwel
Annabelle Lopez Ochoa created Cylindrical Shadows after the loss of a close friend, in exploration of the themes of life and death. Her choreography moves through darkness to a place of peace and hope, revealing the resilience of the human spirit in the face of tragedy.

Habitual
Choreography: Heather Britt
Music: Gabriel Gaffney Smith
Heather Britt’s tense and sensuous pas de deux returns after debuting in the 2013 Kaplan New Works Series. Habitual is a duet about feeling stuck and the attraction that we have as humans to repeat what is familiar.

World Premiere
Choreography: Jennifer Archibald
Jennifer Archibald pulls from a variety of influences to boldly and seamlessly infuse ballet with nuances of hip hop. This combination of hip hop with classical aesthetic in movement greatly influences her musical scores, which she often custom engineers to include an assortment of compositions.
