Title: Radiology Technologist

Pay Scale Group: 13D

Essential Function
Under general supervision from a designated supervisor, assist in the diagnosis and treatment of patients by producing radiographs of various organs and structures of the human body.

Characteristic Duties
- Perform diagnostic radiologic procedures in accordance with established protocols.
- Review patient histories and requests for services for appropriateness and completeness.
- Position patients and provide for protection from ionizing radiation through collimation, gonadal shielding and other methods.
- Select and operate radiographic equipment; follow standard safety protocols for personnel using radiographic equipment.
- Regulate time and intensity of radiographic exposure on individual patients.
- Prepare opaque media and assists physicians in administering media to patients; administer or assist in administering CPR or other emergency procedures as needed.
- Provide routine nursing care to patients while they are in department.
- Perform evaluative equipment tests and participates in quality control program.
- Practice aseptic and sterile techniques to prevent spread of disease.
- Instruct radiologic technology students in methods and procedures.
- Process radiographic film.
- Review finished radiographs for diagnostic acceptability.
- Maintain appropriate records, supplies, etc.
- Participate in continuing education activities related to field of radiologic technology.
- Perform related duties based on departmental need.

Minimum Qualifications
- Completion of an AMA approved program in Radiologic Technology; OR an Associate's degree in Radiologic Technology. Registration as a Radiologic Technologist by the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists is required.

Last updated: January 2011