THAILAND: For a study abroad experience that costs less than UC tuition, you can study abroad for a semester or summer with USAC in Chiang Mai, Thailand. Chiang Mai is the second largest city in the cooler, jungle area of northern Thailand. At prestigious Chiang Mai University you will take all of your courses in English and choose from classes such as International Business, International Relations, Buddhism, Gender Studies, Sustainable Development and Thai Cuisine. You will live with other American students in furnished apartments in walking distance of campus in an upscale neighborhood with trendy restaurants, cafes and nightlife. This program includes tours of temples, remote hill tribe villages and even the opportunity to ride an elephant! Thailand is a great home base to explore southeast Asia, one of the most affordable adventure travel regions in the world. CHILE: When the Winter blues hit Cincinnati next January (2013), it’s time to take off for sunny Chile in South America! This session will focus on study at the Universidad Andrés Bello which enrolls approximately 30,000 students and is widely regarded as one of Chile’s most important private universities. Santiago’s urban and natural framework, its mountainous terrain, and its proximity to Chile’s central coastline are ideal for experiencing the nature and culture of the most southern country in the world. You’ll have the opportunity to study Spanish language and contemporary Chilean society through a wide selection of academic courses, as well as personal interaction and immersion in the host culture. The campus is located in downtown Santiago which is conveniently situated along the subway line. It is in a traditional, peaceful, elegant neighborhood, which is quickly becoming the student hub of universities, departments, and several institutes. AUSTRALIA: Spend fall or spring semester in Australia and pay University of Cincinnati tuition! Students can spend a semester or year in beautiful Melbourne at UC’s exchange partner Swinburne University. Coursework is in English and a variety of subjects are offered, from Design to Business and Engineering. Melbourne has 3.7 million people and is Australia’s cultural, culinary and sporting capital. It has a mild climate, affordable cost of living, public transport and an abundance of parkland and public space. Students will also learn about upcoming semester and yearlong opportunities in Sydney at one of Australia’s best universities. Join us at the upcoming info sessions or contact ryan.meyer@uc.edu for more information.

DUBAI: If you are interested in improving your Arabic language skills, developing an understanding of the Gulf region and its role in the Arab World and global economy, and learning firsthand about the daily intersection of traditional values and modern realities in the United Arab Emirates, then the abroad program at the University of Sharjah or the University of Dubai, United Arab Emirates may be right for you. These programs are geared towards students who want to enroll directly in business, engineering, science, social science, and humanities courses taught in English alongside local students. It is also ideal for those who want to improve their Arabic language skills while becoming fully integrated into local student culture at a university that provides a valuable combination of U.S. quality academics, modern facilities, and a true Gulf immersion experience.
