Service Learning and School Change

- Have you ever thought about how to connect the classroom to the community?
- Do you believe that the community and school cannot be approached individually?
- Would you like to experiment with innovative ways to teach, learn, and connect with others?
- Do you believe that the inclusion of hands-on, authentic experience will equip parents, teachers, and community members to solve real world problems?
- Would you like to learn about Service Learning, Civic Engagement, and Servant Leadership?
- Are you interested in building networks with some of the leading Service Learning and Civic Engagement teachers, researchers, and leaders in the region?
- Do you need Continuing Education Credits or other Professional Development Opportunities?
- Would you like to learn at your own pace, in your own time, using an online platform?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, then this class is for YOU!

In the Winter Quarter of 2012, UC’s Center for Service Learning and Civic Engagement is partnering with the Mayerson Foundation’s High School Service-Learning Program and UGIVE.ORG to offer an exciting and innovative course titled Service Learning and School Change.

This class is designed for graduates and undergraduates, for scholars and practitioners, for current teachers and future teachers, and for directors and associates of non-profit organizations and community groups. If you want to learn how to connect with other Servant Leaders to enact Social Change, sign up now!

Registration opens October 17th

Please contact the Center for Service Learning and Civic Engagement at the University of Cincinnati (Michael.Sharp@uc.edu or 513.556.1533) if you are interested in hearing more about this incredible opportunity to Live, Learn, and Grow.
