eCurriculum Tools For Displaying the Curriculum

C-1 (Course Form)

The C-1 creates information about each individual course, including credit level, hours, offering college(s), description, course learning outcomes, available attributes, etc.

Some components of the C-1, but not all, are presented on public sites (i.e. class offerings).

P-1, M-1, N-1 (Program Form)

The P-1/M-1 builds a program’s curriculum, using C-1’s. It creates additional information, including the program learning outcomes, degree level, delivery mechanism, etc.

The P-1/M-1 is not directly displayed on public sites. It is used for reporting and to supply other systems with information.

Curriculum Guide

The Curriculum Guide takes the course requirement information from the P-1/M-1 form, and allows for a visually organized curriculum, such as a yearly layout of courses, and text.

The curriculum guide is publicly displayed within the Program Outline, below.

Program Outline

The Program Outline describes the program to the public, providing responses to several standard prompts including “What Is?”, “Career Possibilities”, “Special Programs”, etc.

The Program Outline is publicly displayed, and accessible through a table to allow searches by keyword, interest area, type of program, or college. The Program Outline links visitors to the department, college, and admissions websites.
From Approval to the World Wide Web

- The new program approval process ends with the creation of a program code (PASLA) in UniverSIS. This PASLA is then used to build a program form, P-1 or M-1, in eCurriculum.
- Next, the P-1 or M-1 is submitted for approval, and must be reviewed and approved. The typical levels of approval are: ProgramDirector, UnitHead, DeansOffice, GradCouncil (if grad), AC, and Provost.
- After the P-1/M-1 is approved, the Curriculum Guide and Program Outline must each be completed in order to display the program on UC’s public list of programs.
- eCurriculum training sessions and materials are being made available to support users completing the process.
