One of the world’s most beautiful campuses. (Forbes, 2010)

We’re more than a pretty campus. Our students, among the most diverse in the nation (Princeton Review, 2009), choose from hundreds of academic programs, including 11 ranked in the top 10. We’ve been called a research heavyweight (The Chronicle of Higher Education, 2010) and—did we mention?—we invented co-op way back in 1906. It’s no wonder we’re welcoming the highest achieving freshman class ever. Take a look inside!
If you know any of the exceptional students listed here, offer your congratulations. Because today, these scholarship winners join 6,000 other young men and women beginning their first day of class at the University of Cincinnati. And while they may be your kids, siblings, friends, neighbors, classmates or classmates from now on, they’ll be something else as well: Bearcats.
