

Proposed Resolution from HRC

To

Include the Innovative Uses of Technology in Teaching Award to the Annual Faculty Awards Celebration

March 11, 2010

Whereas, each year UC honors one of its greatest assets – its distinguished faculty – by hosting the Faculty Awards Celebration and bestowing major awards in teaching, research, service, entrepreneurship and more; and

Whereas, the Innovative Uses of Technology in Teaching Award given out by the CET&L is an annual award that seeks to honor a faculty member who has applied technology in innovative and effective ways to enhance teaching and to improve learning; and

Whereas, the Innovative Uses of Technology in Teaching Award selection criteria is on par with some of the other awards given at the Faculty Awards Celebration; and

Whereas, the Innovative Uses of Technology in Teaching Award represents a substantial documented achievement.

Be it resolved the Human Relations Committee recommends that the Faculty Senate supports the inclusion of the Innovative Uses of Technology in Teaching Award given by the Center for the Enhancement of Teaching & Learning (CET&L) in the annual Faculty Awards Celebration.
