Deciding to prepare for law school can be one of the most exciting, yet challenging, decisions during your undergraduate studies. While there is no specific major required or recommended to study law, it is important for you choose a major you'll enjoy and find challenging. We encourage students to design an undergraduate education portfolio to include a major(s), certificate(s) and/or minor(s). In developing this portfolio, keep in mind the important skill areas for success in law school and a legal career identified by the American Bar Association:

- Problem-solving
- Critical reading and writing
- Oral communication and listening
- Relationship-building
- Background knowledge
- Exposure to the law
- Research
- Organization and management
- Public service and promotion of justice
